Iguana clothing is easy to wear and fits most figure types.
Made of rayon, it's perfect for even the most sultry days of summer.
We love this line because it offers many jacket options for those air-conditioned environments.

SKIF SKIF SKIF

Come and join the Skif parade.
These sweaters are fun to wear and soo flattering.
We're all fans of this ready to wear line.

And some of the designs come in knitting patterns.
Thanks, Nina!

FINISHING TECHNIQUES with Liz Tekus, Sunday, June 28, 2009 1-4pm, $35.00.
Are you tired of knitting sweaters and having them sit in a bag unfinished? Do you yearn for that professional look when your garment is completed? If so, sign up for Liz's finishing class. Bring the pieces of your garment and let Liz help you assemble your masterpiece. If you don't have a sweater ready to finish, we'll give you homework when you enroll in the class.

So where have we been and what did we learn?

Sue, Enid and I traveled to Columbus last week to get an overview of the yarn world for Fall, 2009. Our distributors presented a wealth of products. Colors, rich in golds and oranges, eggplant and forest green led the trend. We loved "Missoni-like" yarns and designs from Stacy Charles (Filatura di Crosa) and new colors from our buddy, Claudia, of Claudia Hand Painted Yarns. And speaking of linen, we created custom color blends, only available at Fine Points.

Lana Grossa designs and yarns are exquisite. Rowan and Gedifra have outdone themselves.

Many of you enjoyed the Colorscape yarns from last year. We know you'll want to work with their new colorways, as well as new weights and colors in an old favorite, Felted Tweed.

And what can anyone say about the color range of Noro Yarns? They are magnificent as always.

We spent time in the Mountain Colors booth. Their new yarn, River Twist, is one you'll want to try.

We also visited some of our old friends from Bagsmith, Schaefer Yarns, Anny Blatt, Twisted Sisters and Misti Alpaca.

And, Oh, the buttons!

When you see what we ordered, you'll be delighted: lots of whimsical shapes and colors to enhance the quality of any garment.

One of the surprises we encountered was meeting the designer of Skif, Nina Ganci. We were all best buddies after 10 minutes. Here's a photo of us during our visit.

Nina brings such joy and creativity to her work. If you haven't tried a Skif pattern (or purchased from her ready to wear line), do yourself a favor and try one! It's by far a different approach to wearables.

Our distributors presented us with great options and we chose amazing things for you. Color and design are at their peak for Fall.

On Thursday evening, Heather, Hannah and I travel to the clothing market to buy for Fall. We're anticipating another wonderful experience. We all look forward to an exciting Fall.

Life is good.
